Tens of thousands of documents, presentations and other internal materials from the Ministry of Energy of Kazakhstan.

In January 2022, protests erupted in Kazakhstan after the government lifted a price cap on liquefied petroleum gas. In the first week of the year, 227 people were killed and thousands arrested. The protests led to the resignation of prime minister Asqar Mamin, and the removal of Nursultan Nazarbayev from the chairmanship of the Security Council. The hackers encrypted the hard drives where they extracted the data, as "revenge for the murdered." The protests were quelled by a peacekeeper force sent by Russian president Vladimir Putin, who blamed foreign influence for inspiring "color revolutions."
